We are pleased to issue you an NZeTA (New Zealand Electronic Travel Authority). This letter has important information about travelling on your NZeTA, so please read it carefully.

What your NZeTA allows you to do

Your NZeTA is valid until 27 February 2028.

Until at least November 2026, your NZeTA will allow you to fly to NZ if:

- you hold an eligible Australian visa (it cannot be 'provisional' or 'expired'); AND
- you travel directly from Australia (not transiting through Australia); AND
- you use the same passport for your Australian visa, NZeTA and travel to New Zealand.

This is a part of a 12-month trial for citizens of China and Pacific Island Forum countries. The Government will announce closer to November 2026 whether this trial will be extended.

Up until 27 February 2028 your NZeTA will also allow you to:

- travel to New Zealand on a cruise ship or cargo vessel.
- transit through Auckland International Airport.

Check that your NZeTA details match your passport

Check that the details at the top of this letter (including your given, middle and family names) match your passport exactly. You will not be allowed to travel to New Zealand on this NZeTA if these details do not match.

If you find an error, act now to avoid disruptions to your trip. You can correct some details on your NZeTA, such as your passport number or email address, by going to: www.immigration.govt.nz/request-change-nzeta.

Other details, such as your passport nationality, cannot be changed. If these details are incorrect, you will need to request a new NZeTA.

Before you travel to New Zealand

Before you check in to your flight or cruise to New Zealand, make sure that:

- your NZeTA is still valid (and request a new one if it is expiring); AND
- your passport will be valid for at least 3 months after the date you plan to leave New Zealand; AND
- your Australian visa is valid, if you are flying into New Zealand.

At check-in or when you arrive in New Zealand, you may also be asked for proof that:

- you have enough money to pay your living expenses during your stay.
- you have a ticket out of New Zealand to a country you are allowed to enter.

Find out more about these requirements on our website: www.immigration.govt.nz/before-you-travel.

You must complete a New Zealand Traveller Declaration (NZTD) each time you want to enter New Zealand. You can complete this declaration online up to 24 hours before you start your journey to New Zealand.

Complete your NZTD at: www.travellerdeclaration.govt.nz or download the app from the App Store or Google Play.

When you arrive in New Zealand

Your NZeTA gives you permission to travel to New Zealand without a New Zealand visa. It does not guarantee your entry into New Zealand.

At the border, we may speak to you to make sure you meet our entry requirements to enter New Zealand, including that any declarations you submitted as part of requesting this NZeTA were accurate.

If you are travelling by plane, you will generally be granted a 3-month visitor visa when you arrive in New Zealand.

If you are travelling by ship, you will be deemed to hold a visitor visa for up to 28 days when you arrive at your first New Zealand port.

For more information on these requirements, visit www.immigration.govt.nz/arriving.

While in New Zealand

As a visitor, you are welcome to take part in:

- tourism and sightseeing
- visiting friends and family
- study for up to 3 months
- business-related activities such as attending meetings or conferences
- unpaid sports or cultural events
- remote work for overseas-based employers or clients.

Remote work in New Zealand must not involve:

- working for a New Zealand employer
- providing goods or services to people or businesses in New Zealand, in exchange for money or other rewards (including accommodation)
- work that requires you to be physically present at a workplace in New Zealand.

More information on working remotely in New Zealand can be found on our website:

www.immigration.govt.nz/working-remotely

If you are coming to New Zealand for a holiday, Tourism New Zealand's website has information on what to see and do in New Zealand: www.newzealand.com/nz.

See you in New Zealand!
